

Why Holiday Houses Are So Popular

Why Would you rent a holiday house instead of going to a hotel or apartment? There are a number of reasons, first being if you are able to get a large group together & rent a holiday house it will end up being far more cheaper than it would if you went & stayed in a hotel. The second reason is you have your own privacy or own kitchen and in some properties your own private swimming pools. This would also suit family reunions, a weekend away with the girls and some properties even hold weddings. Whatever the case renting holiday houses are the new thing these days. Once stayed in a spectacular 10 bedroom house with swimming pool, heated floors, dimmed lights & several spas & saunas, this house had it all. The location was second to none being on a quiet lagoon and a stone's throw away to the beach, this would be perfect for a wedding setting or big family holiday reunion. Holiday houses are largely becoming popular as a cheaper alternative and a different way to holiday. As interest rates rise, people are looking for alternatives to holiday and being cheaper would defiantly be a bonus. It is becoming a trend that people are now booking larger holiday houses that will accommodate 10 people plus with houses on the beach or close by to one being the most popular. How much you ask - Well on average to rent a nice modern 4 bedroom holiday house with about a 200m walk to the beach will set you back about $2000 with most owners also wanting a bond or credit card details as well. This works out to $200 per person for a week, then you would split the cost of food and petrol.
